By Dr. Mark Drucker, M.D.

Dr. Drucker received his medical degree from the University of Tennessee Center for Health Sciences. He has been a family physician for over twelve years and is also involved in nutritional and alternative medicine. Dr.

Drucker is currently the Medical Director of the Center for Advanced Medicine in California.

"As a family physician and the medical director of the Center for Advanced Medicine, I'm in a great position to help patients who are sick and tired of being sick and tired.

While most doctors still practice medicine with the goal of just suppressing symptoms (they have accepted the disease as part of their patient), I've tried to take a more holistic approach. Hippocrates, the father of medicine said, "Nutrition shall be your medicine."

At the Center, we use nutritional products to restore the body's biochemical balance, and we draw on the expertise of different specialists, such as chiropractors and massage therapists, to help people feel better.

For a long time we used different combinations of vitamins and minerals, all of which had been synthesized in a laboratory.

But what we really wanted to find was a natural food product that could achieve the same or better results for our patients. RiSoTriene™ was our answer."

An Exciting Discovery: The Science Behind RiSoTriene™

RiSoTriene™ is truly the greatest nutritional discovery of the century.

For centuries, mothers in India believed that the rice bran which encapsulates white rice held certain healing powers that worked miracles on their ill children. The outer layer of rice, the 'rice bran', contains 65% of the nutrients found in the kernel; in other words, over two thirds of the rice kernel's nutrients lie in the bran. Unfortunately, the life span of the fragile rice bran is short, rendering it useless within hours after being milled from the kernel. Because the outer layer contains an enzyme called lipase which causes the rice to become rancid within hours after harvesting, the bran has always been removed and discarded. Efforts to prolong the life sustaining power of the rice bran were fruitless. For the past 50 years, every major rice growing country in the world has searched for a way to stabilize the bran, but without success. A major breakthrough in extrusion technology has now unlocked the means to stabilize the rice bran while maintaining and enhancing its nutritional value. The stabilization is accomplished without the use of chemicals or any additives. This special processing of rice concentrates have combined extracts and stabilized fractions to deliver the ultimate nutritional complex. The rice bran has been transformed into one of the most valuable food resources ever discovered.

As smart as we are, we still can't recreate in a pill what God has given to us naturally.

ATTENTION DIABETICS... By Joe Hymer, M.D.

When I first began using RiSoTriene™, I was already aware of its nutrient value, having practiced medicine in the "Rice Capital" of Texas for 8 years. Here in Castroville, Texas I had an elderly patient who had a stroke. At the nursing home, we were administering the RiSoTriene™ in a liquid base to give him nutrients.

His wife, Mrs. Moak, 89, had been a diabetic for many years. We noticed her blood sugar began getting lower and lower. We kept reducing her medication and soon had her off completely. One day I went to the nursing home to visit her husband and there was Mrs. Moak, eating the RiSoTriene™! It now made sense that this was the reason her diabetes had improved to the point of having her off all medication! That was over four years ago and Mrs. Moak has done remarkably well, far into her 90's! She loves the RiSoTriene™ and its many benefits.

Patients using RiSoTriene™ make steady progress-we don't see the periodic plateaus patients often encounter in other treatment programs. There are also fewer allergic reactions because it's a natural food with no additives.

We find that it's almost impossible to get these same results from pills and tablets that have so many added chemicals and fillers. RiSoTriene™ contains nutrients that fit together to solve the nutritional puzzles of patients with both severe and moderate health problems. These nutrients can do much more than any single nutrient can do on its own. RiSoTriene™ works!
